INTRODUCTION

Paper trading is a practice activity that helps students learn trading without using real money. I used TradingView Paper Trading to practise buying and selling cryptocurrencies. During this programme, I traded Bitcoin (BTCUSD) and Ethereum (ETHUSD) using LONG and SHORT positions. I also used SMA, RSI 14, Support and Resistance, and price movements to make trading decisions. This report explains my trading performance, strategies, mistakes, and learning experience during the programme.

FACTORS INFLUENCING PERFORMANCE

Market movements had an important impact on my trading performance. Ethereum prices increased during the initial period and reached a higher level. After that, prices started falling sharply. These price changes showed that the cryptocurrency market was highly volatile. Entry and exit timing also affected trading results. I understood that market analysis, proper planning, patience, and risk management are important for better trading performance.

PROCESS VS OUTCOME

My trading experience helped me understand the relationship between the trading process and the final outcome. My trade history showed both profits and losses. I earned small profits in some trades and faced a small loss in another trade. One trade also gave a higher profit compared to others. This experience helped me understand the importance of market analysis, proper entry and exit decisions, and trading discipline. I learned that following a proper trading plan is important for improving my performance.

TRADING STRATEGY & APPLICATION

Strategy Overview

I used a simple trading strategy during my TradingView paper trading activity. I observed market price movements before making trading decisions. I focused on price changes, market trends, and entry and exit points. I used charts to understand whether the market was moving upward or downward. This helped me understand market movements and make better trading decisions. Through this activity, I improved my trading knowledge, patience, and confidence.

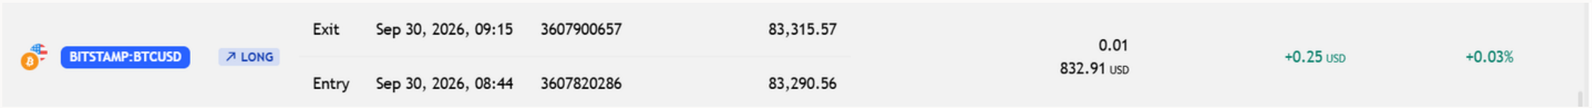

APPLICATION OF THE STRATEGY

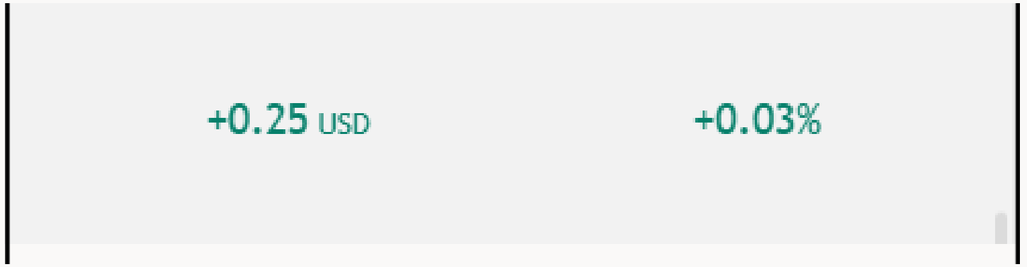

I applied my trading strategy using RSI and SMA indicators in TradingView Paper Trading. I observed the price movements of Ethereum before making trading decisions. I used SMA to understand average price movements and RSI to study market conditions. I also observed the market trend before entering a trade. I checked the price movements and entry and exit points. This helped me understand how to apply the strategy in trading and improve my decision-making skills.
